[redacted]inor children [redacted] to study i[redacted]Canada must [redacted] for [redacted] study [redacted] before th[redacted] i[redacted] children who come with parents who already have a valid study or work permit.

Minors coming to Canada with parents who have a valid study or work permit application that has been approved in writing before they come to Canada do not need to provide a letter of acceptance from a designated learning institution (DLI) when applying for a study permit.

Unless they meet one of the exceptions, they must submit a provincial/territorial attestation letter (PAL/TAL) with their application. For example, if they are applying to study at a preschool, primary or secondary school they do not require a [redacted]ill [redacted] to [redacted] that [redacted]the [redacted] not [redacted] with their application.

Subject: Inquiry Regarding Study Permit Application for Children of TFW

Good day,

I hope this message finds you well. I have a question regarding the children of a Temporary Foreign Worker (TFW) who is currently living and working in British Columbia under a closed work permit in a TEER 4 occupation.

Can the children, who are residing overseas and wish to attend primary, secondary, and high school, apply for a study permit without having an admission letter or a provincial attestation letter?

Your guidance on this matter would be greatly appreciated.

Best regards,
